“ Cory was a gentle, quiet soul. You could always count on Cory to pick you up off the side of the highway, to work on your car, electronics, appliances, and hardly ever did her want a penny. He did it all with a smile. He loved animals, and saved several from certain demise. He once caused a kitten across 3 lanes of high traffic with out a thought, and that is one the several birds, cars and dogs he tried to save. He was good with kids, and helped form the childhood of several. He showed little boys what is is to be a good man. Cory worked long, hard hours and still found the to help others. He loved his family. He loved me for many years and that was a privilege.

“ I met Cory while he was with my daughter, Robin Rowland. They were together for many years. He was always acceptant of me as her mother & my husband, Tom. He never hesitated to lend a hand in anything that was needed to be done for us. He had a very caring place in his heart for my grandchildren also. I am so very sad that he has to suffer like he did. He is gone, but will not ever be forgotten
