“ I never met her in person but she and I were in contact by messenger or text and video chats and phone calls DAILY for 30 years. I considered her a friend and advisor (mostly health issues) because she was in the medical field. She always wanted me to keep her up on the news because she couldn't see too good, and after I found out she died, I almost texted her news about this celebrity or that one dying, and had to catch myself to not send the text. It just doesn't seem right that my phone isn't blowing up from calls or text messages.
